COLLEGE OF SOCIAL SCIENCES
UNIVERSITY OF HAWAII AT MĀNOA

NATIVE HAWAIIAN INITIATIVE

The College of Social Sciences' Native Hawaiian Initiative expands the network of faculty cooperating across disciplines to inspire and support research and teaching strategies grounded in Hawaiian values and knowledge systems. Our purpose is to strengthen learning, social sciences literacy, critical thinking, and student leadership, while building strong programs for community engagement and supporting a meaningful and productive home base for indigenous students at the College of Social Sciences (CSS).

This initiative strives to implement the goals and objectives identified by the Native Hawaiian Advancement Task Force, essential to UHM being a Hawaiian place of learning.

Ka wā mamua, ka wā mahope

Lessons from the past imbedded in cultural knowledge to understand the present as we plan for our desired future

The CSS Native Hawaiian Initiative builds bridges from the past to the future and from the academy to the community by working beyond walls and halls of the college classroom. Students do community-engaged work and thereby strengthen their knowledge and skills and contribute to the understanding of the social and cultural contexts of contemporary local and global issues.

The CSS initiative supports and seeks to develop both additional opportunities for engaged scholarship and academic and institutional foundation. Included are some examples of ongoing projects.

Such projects contribute to the revitalization of our local communities and environment in Hawai'i through the utilization of human and academic capital.

We support creation of experiential, place- and project-based courses that restore KULEANA to land and community.

Kuleana

(rights, responsibilities, authority, obligations)

- Kuleana is about genealogy (familial, social, historical)
- Kuleana is about land & genealogical relation to place
- Kuleana is about responsibility to a collective; requires affirmation from the community
- Kuleana recognizes layered & differential, yet interdependent interests
- Kuleana is about both material, subsistence concerns and the way these relate to spiritual connection (ex. food)
- Kuleana has to do with the ethical responsibilities

Ka Holo Wa'a:

traditional voyaging practices -- intercultural sharing project (Pacific Connections)

Growing Kalo and Keiki:

Partnership with University of Hawai'i Indigenous Politics, Kāko'o 'Ōiwi, and the Voyager Charter School.

University of Hawai'i Indigenous Politics:

University of Victoria Indigenous Governance Graduate Exchange. Students have looked at and practiced specific Indigenous concepts that can inform transformative, land-based praxis - drawing upon specific, local Indigenous ways of theorizing and practicing land use, past and present, and exploring how these concepts might travel. Two central concepts and practices explored are : kuleana and sustainable self-determination.

Exploring My Backyard and Beyond

Annual summer science program for middle-school children (the Pālolo Pipeline and the Mālama I Nā Ahupua'a Programs)

Kūpopolo Heiau Field School:

A three-year archaeological field school and oral history project on the North Shore of O'ahu trains undergraduates, graduates, and community members in archaeological and ethnographic methods as well as cultural and social protocols. The field school directly responds to the needs of the Hawaiian community in the areas of cultural resources management, historic preservation, and burial sites protection.
